EXPECT GERMANY'S ANSWER TO PROTEST

Say German Foreign Office Will Expedite Preparation Of Note

Germany Expected Protest —President Wilson Expected To Remain Firm

Washington, May 17.—Germany's reply to President Wilson's note may reach Washington Tuesday or Wednesday, and officials continue to regard the outlook as hopeful.

Unofficial intimations reached here today that the German foreign office intends to expedite its copies of the president's "last preparation. It is understood that word" on submarine warfare already are in the hands of the kaiser and his chief advisers.

This demands reparation for loss of American lives and property due to Germany's submarine warfare, and a pledge that such lives and property will hereafter be safeguarded.

Despite "inspired" interviews bearing Berlin dates lines and purporting to give views of mysterious high officials, diplomatic circles here continued certain today that Germany, in her reply to the United States, will adopt a conciliatory attitude.

Protest Was Expected

Germany, it is said in diplomatic circles, expected a protest concerning the Lusitania. She realized that one was being prepared in the Falaba case involving the death of the American, Leon Thresher.

The kaiser was understood to stand ready to disavow the Cushing and Gulflight incidents and not only to apologize but to offer indemnity.

President Wilson's tart assertion that the Lusitania sinking was a crime, coupled with the demand that the submarine warfare be ended forwith, came, however, as an unpleasant surprise, diplomats say. They assert that Germany is, nevertheless, as anxious today to conciliate the United States as she was ten days ago; possibly more so, because of developments in Italy.

For this reason, if is expected the Berlin government will accept in spirit at least, the undebatable sections of the president's note, and will then seek a ground of amicable final settlement that will benefit Germany.

John Dugan was dismissed from the City hospital Monday afternoon. Dugan was taken to the hospital Thursday afternoon after being stabbed in a fight in a hobo camp near Oak Grove cemetery.

Report English Troops Gaining

Believe German Line Has Been Broken--Turkish Towns Destroyed By Fire From Allies' Big Guns--Russians Report Big Victories.

London, May 17.—(1:58 p. m.)—Field Marshall Sir John French has broken his silence in regard to the movements of the British army northwest of La Bassee, with the announcement of an advance of nearly a mile into the German line. This, together with the continuance of the French thrusts both north of Ypres and southwest of La Bassee, constitutes the outstanding feature of the military situation today.

Military commentators here regard the British advance as a genuine break of the German line which, if maintained, must mean a retreat for a considerable section of the invaders' forces.

Recapture of the bridge over the Yser canal at Steenstracte by the French deprives the Germans of their last connection with the west side of the waterway. German assaults on the British position at Ypres seem to have spent themselves, at least for the moment.

Fire from the allies' guns has destroyed the Turkish towns of Maidos and Bulair on the Gallipoli peninsula, according to word from Decaeh.

Say Austrians Beaten

Petrograd, May 17.—Complete victory for the Russians in southeastern Galicia and Bukowina is announced by the war office in an official statement issued here today.

The Austrians have been routed along the entire Dneister front of 100 miles, it states. The Russians have taken 20,000 prisoners.

For ten days there has been severe fighting along the Dneister front, where the Russians have been assailing the Austrians' right wing after checking its attempt to advance and strike at the lines of communications upon which the Russians depend for sending supplies and reinforcements to the troops which have been withdrawing before the Austro-German assaults in the Carpathians and in western Galicia.

The Austrians have been driven from their positions along the south bank of the Dneister river and have crossed the Pruth. Nadworna, 22 miles south of Stanislau, has been recaptured by the Russians. This is the fifth time Nadworna has changed hands.

PUSCAS LANDED IN JAIL

Investigation Of Clowville Case Leads To Arrest Of Foreigner

Charged With Contributing To Delinquency Of Sarah Wilmot, 14

On the charge of contributing to the delinquency to Sarah Wilmot, aged 14, of Clowville, Nick Puscas, also of Clowville, was arrested Monday evening by Sheriff Phalon and Probation Officer Brunskill and lodged in the county jail. He will probably be arraigned before Judge Ashman in juvenile court today or tomorrow.

The authorities have been investigating the case for some time and is believed that further investigation of the case will bring out facts of a repulsive nature.

It is probable that Wilmot girl will be adjudged a delinquent and taken to the girls' industrial home at Delaware. Some time ago her step-father, James Wilmot, was held in the county jail on a charge of assaulting her. In this case however, the grand jury failed to return an indictment.

Objections Are Made by Sportsmen

Farmers along the Walhonding river below the six mile dam and members of the Coshocton Fish and Game Protective Association are determined to make a fight on the project of the Ohio Service company to increase the height of the dam.

The present height of the dam was fixed by the state and is such that in the dry season but little water flows over so that the stream becomes sluggish and impure. Many farmers depend on the river as a water supply for their stock. On the other hand, the Fish and Game Protective Association alleges that the stream has been reduced in volume so that the game fish are driven from that section.

The proposed nine inch raise would complete the work and practically shut off all flow during the dry season it is said. In addition, it is said that the company does not use all the water now at its disposal. It is said that water flows over the spillway before reaching the Hydro plant for the greater part of the year.

BATTLE ABOVE CLOUDS

Eight English Naval Aviators Attack Raiding Zeppelins In Sky

Big Dirigible Forced Out To Sea And Reported Badly Damaged

London, May 17.—In a spectacular battle far above the clouds over the English channel, eight English naval aviators from the Dunkirk station attacked and severely damaged one of the Zeppelins that bombarded English coast town along the Downs early today.

Official dispatches to the admiralty brought word of the thrilling air fight. The aviators, it was officially announced, were subjected to heavy fire from the airship's machine guns, but escaped without casualties.

Driven To Sea

The Zeppelin was first attacked by English aviators along the British coast and driven out to sea near the West Hinder lightship. Wireless messages to the British aviation camp at the French seaport of Dunkirk brought eight naval biplanes darting to the attack above the channel.

Three aviators closed in about the Zeppelin, firing at close range. Two others tilted into the clouds until they were directly over the big dirigible, which sped eastward at 40 miles an hour.

The aviators above began dropping bombs at the Zeppelin from a height of 200 feet. One bomb crashed through the huge bag and almost immediately a large column of smoke arose through the coluds The crew of the dirigible quickly began throwing out bags of ballast, and she rose to a height of 11,000 feet, tail downward and apparently drifting helplessly high in the clouds.

Badly Damaged

The commander of the flying corps wirelessed the admiralty that he had every reason to believe the Zeppelin was so badly damaged she would be unable to make land.

This Zeppelin and one other dropped over 60 bombs last night on Ramsgate and other coast towns southeast of London.

Over half of these bombs were dropped around Ramsgate, and one damaged three fishing smacks huddled close together in the harbor.

Another crashed into a hotel, injuring three persons. A third fell in the garden of the tuberculosis hospital at Thanet, but did no damage.

The spire of St. George's church at Ramsgate was made a special target, but was not hit.

The two Zeppelins appeared over Broadstairs and Deal, but did no damage there, before speeding eastward.

Six Thousand Are Killed By Turks

London Receives News Of Terrible Massacre Of Armenians--Position Of The Armenians In Turkey And Persia Gravely Dangerous.

London, May 17.—(2:14 p. m.)—Six thousand Armenians have been massacreed at Van in Armenia, Asiatic Turkey, according to a dispatch received in official quarters in London today from the Russian consul at Urumiah, Persia.

This message is dated May 15 It adds that the Armenians are defending themselves to the utmost against the Turks and Kurds arrayed against them, but that help is urgently needed.

News dispatches from Persia, Armenia and Trans-Caucasia, in Russia have set forth for several weeks that the position of the Armenians in Turkey as well as in Northwestern Persia was one of grave danger, but no message has conveyed any indications of such extensive massacreing as does this report to London. If it is true, the Armenian situation has entered upon a period which threatens to rival the condition of 1895.

Armenians Are Persecuted

Kurds and Turks have been persecuting the Armenian residents of these localities for several months. Many have been killed, while large numbers have been driven away as slaves. The city of Van has normally 30,000 inhabitants. If is the seat of an important American mission, and the missionaries have taken an active part in the protection of Armenians from Turkish and Kurdish attack.

Terrible massacres of Armenians in 1895 which resulted in international action for enforcement of the reforms, occurred in October and November. Something like 15,000 people were killed in these months.

MACHINE DAMAGED ON ROAD

Party In Ford Touring Car Have Narrow Escape From Injury

Car Strikes Sandy Spot In Road and Turns Completely Over.

A Ford touring car belonging to Basil Leavitt, 945 South Seventh street, was badly damaged and the occupants narrowly escaped serious injury when the machine turned turtle on the Newcomerstown road near Isleta Sunday afternoon. The car was being driven at a fair rate of speed when it struck a sandy place in the road. The machine skidded and rolled completely over bringing up on all four wheels and headed in the opposite direction from which it had been going.

The occupants were thrown out but fortunately escaped serious injury. The windshield, fenders, radiator and lights were badly damaged on the car which was driven back to this city under its own power.

Young Gets Heavy Dose For Assault

As a result of an assault on his stepfather, O. J. Case, at his home on South Seventh street, Sunday evening, Fred Young, aged 19, was given a fine of $100 and costs and given a six months sentence in the works when he faced Mayor Staats Monday. He was recently released from that institution after serving part of a sentence.

The trouble occurred Sunday afternoon. Young, it is said, had drove a horse after being forbidden to do so by his father-in-law. On his return with the horse, Mr. Case attempted to take charge of the animal and a quarrel ensued. Young, it is said, struck the older man with a shovel and also hurled a conch shell at his mother, breaking a glass door.

Chief Mapel, and Officer Courtright and Gorman happened to be passing up Main street and they hastened to the scene. Mapel and Gorman went in the house leaving Courtright to watch the front. Young went out an upstairs window, and swinging down from a veranda, ran out Walnut street.

After an extended chase by Officer Gorman and Murray Sondles, who was deputized by the officer, Young was cornered at the rear of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Appis Is Operated Upon

Mrs John Appis was operated upon at her home in the Boulevard addition Sunday afternoon for the removal of a fatty tumor from her arm. Drs. Lear and Smailes performed the operation. At a late hour Monday night, it was said that her condition was very satisfactory.

Report Teutonic Ambassadors Would Leave Italy Within Short Time

Situation In Italy Remains Critical—Troop Clash Is Rumored

Rome, May 17.—Two conferences between Prince von Buelow and Baron von Macchio were followed today by reports that the Teutonic ambassadors had asked for their passports, but these were denied by the Italian foreign office. The international situation is admittedly serious, however, owing to rumors of a clash between Austrian and Italian troops on the frontier.

The Italian cabinet held a secret session Sunday night at which a further credit of $20,000,000 is said to have been voted for immediate military and naval "necessities."

Though King Victor Emmanuel has refused to accept the resignation of the Salandra cabinet, the parliamentary situation remains as obscure as that relating to international affairs. The Giolittian and Clerical parties are maintaining silence, which is inexplicable at this time. Few believe they have been converted to war, but none attempts to guess what their next move will be.

According to the Tribuna, the reopening of parliament will again be postponed for several days because of "expected complications of a most serious nature."

Four Face the Mayor

R. H. Walker, corn doctor, pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication when he faced the mayor Sunday morning and was given a fine of $1 and costs.

Anna Smith, the aged pencil vender, was fined $1 and costs when she was arraigned before the mayor on a charge of intoxication Sunday morning. After she had been released she was again taken into custody and sent out of town.

Phoebe Brown and Warren Frazee were each fined $1 and costs on intoxication charges when they were arraigned before the mayor Sunday morning.

Custer, Miss Laura Fisher, George Bock, Ross Hamilton, Clarence Lenhart, Fred Compton, Herbert Denman and E. C. Compton.

A Brilliant Affair.

The reception to the class of 1915 promises to be one of the most conspicuous and brilliant affairs ever given by the alumni. No effort is being spared to make it a success and an unprecedented interest is being manifest among the members both old and young.

The fact that it is the first reception to be held in the new Central High school building gives additional interest and that it will go down as one of the memorable events in the history of the building is undoubted. The committee on arrangements will see that every detail for the comfort and pleasure of the guests is prepared while the program committee promises something quite out of the ordinary with "something doing every minute." The reception committee will not only see that the incoming class is royally received but will also see that every one present enjoys the evening to the fullest extent.

The reception will begin at 8 o'clock on the evening of June 11.

Hold Man As Suspected Penitentiary Convict

A man, aged about 28, thought to be William Hamilton, an escaped convict from the Ohio penitentiary, was taken into custody by Detective Doney as he stepped from Pennsy train No. 18 Monday. He was lodged in the county jail to await the arrival of Columbus authorities who will attempt to identify him.

Hamilton is about five feet, seven inches in height, black hair and brown eyes, weighing about 140 pounds. The description of the arrested man tallies exactly with the above. He was riding as a passenger on Number 18 "deadheading" his way, when Conductor McIntire sent a message from Trinway notifying Detective Doney to arrest him when the train reached Coshocton.

As the train pulled up, the suspect alighted and was promptly seized by the officer. His resemblance was noted so he was taken to the county jail and there examined for a birthmark upon the shoulder. A birthmark was found as described but had been recently cut and scratched in such a manner as to lead to the belief that an attempt had been made to obliterate this clue to his identity. The prisoner explained that "his girl" had scratched him.

A reward of fifty dollars is offered for the apprehension of Hamilton, sountil authorities arrive to identify him, the prisoner will be held for investigation. At a late hour Monday night local authorities were still uncertain as to his true identity.

She can announce that, in the interests of friendship, and because she feels she is right, she will suspend indefinitely her submarine warfare against all passenger-carrying vessels.

Then she will demand that all issues raised by the United States be submitted to a competent arbitration court. The United States, Germany can point out, is on record as declaring first that "there can be no last word between friends," and secondly that "there can be no justification in refusing mediation and arbitration when that course is honorably open."

On that record, these officials believe, the United States will be compelled to consider arbitration, should Germany ask it.

AIDS THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS

Importance of Thorough Mastication of Food Is Hardly Properly Understood.

"Chew your food well," is a motto which should be written large on the walls of dining rooms, restaurants, and every other place where human beings eat. The reason is that in order to digest food in the shortest possible time, and with the least possible effort, it must first be dissolved, and this can be accomplished only by adequate chewing.

Just how much thorough chewing lessens the strain on the digestive apparatus can be seen by a very simple experiment.

Take a one-inch cube of hard, solid, non-porous sugar candy and drop it into a pint of water. It will take at least half an hour and perhaps much longer to dissolve, because a cube of this size has only six square inches of surface exposed to the solvent action of the water.

If, however, a similar cube of candy is broken into 100 smaller pieces before being placed in the water it will dissolve 10,000 times as quickly, because there is now 10,000 times as much surface area exposed.

In digestion we have to deal not merely with simple solution but with the chemical conversion of insoluble into soluble substances—a much more difficult process. For this reason a one inch cube of solid food would take much more than 10,000 times as long to digest as the same quantity which has been reduced to fine bits by the action of the teeth and the saliva glands.

Science now believes that much modern dyspepsia arises from our having lost the habit of living on hard, dry foods. When all our food was so hard that it had to be well chewed before we could swallow it our salivary glands were kept more active and our teeth cleaner.

Tacoma, Wash.—Mrs. O. G. Shaw of Electron, the only woman hunter of the country who tackles wild cats in their lair, brought her first trophy this season to County Auditor Morris' office and received the bounty of $5 allowed under the law.

Mrs. Shaw brought in a dozen pelts of wild cats last year and was paid bounties on them. One of the cats she killed while driving along a country road in her automobile. The animal stepped out in front of the machine. Throwing on the brakes, Mrs. Shaw brought out her rifle and killed the cat.

John Dee Must Pay Millions

New York, May 15.—John D. Rockefeller, it was said at the bureau of internal revenue yesterday, will be called upon to pay into the first revenue district of New York this year nearly $4,000,000 as income tax.

This is about 4 per cent. of the total of $100,000,000 which the government of the United States expects this year to obtain from this source of revenue.

Attorneys who made inquiries relative to the income of Mr. Rockefeller during the investigation of the Standard Oil Co., learned that the annual income of Mr. Rockefeller varies from $55,000,000 to $65,000,000. They placed the average at $60,000,000, although in one year since the panic of 1907 Mr. Rockefeller's income is said to have been $137,000,000.

Conservative estimates place the fortune of the builder of the Standard Oil Co, at $900,000,000.

Placing Mr. Rockefeller's income at $60,000,440 this year he will pay to the United States government $3,590,000.

The collar will be low in the back, but not immodestly so. A hat of hand-plucked sea grass, a walking stock of Spanish reed, white shoes and other essentials of lingerie not to be discussed in mixed companies will complete the 1915 garb of the reckless.

Employes Are Badly Needed In Coal Field

Pittsburg, May 15.—A call for 2500 men to work in coal mines in Fayette county, West Virginia, has been received by the federal government's employment bureau here, but so far it has been impossible to furnish more than 300, according to an announcement made yesterday by W. Berry Lecture Enjoyed By All

Bishop Joseph F. Berry delighted his audience with his lecture in Grace M. E. church Saturday evening on "What a Tramp Saw in Ireland." Several years ago Bishop Berry, disguised himself as a tramp and spent thirteen days traveling 72 miles on the road in Ireland. In his lecture last evening he told his varied experiences throughout his expedition and held the audience from the time he took the platform until he concluded by reciting Henry Ward Beecher's prayer for the Emerald Isle.

Bishop Berry's discourse was funny from start to finish. He gave his hearers a keen insight into Irish peasant life, wit, sorrows, and described the wonderful scenery around the Killarney Lakes and the north of Ireland. In speaking of the latter, Mr. Berry said, had he the talent he would do what Wordsworth had done for the English Lakes, and what Scott has done for the Scotch Lakes. He would do what has never been done, write a matchless tribute to the upper lakes of Killarney.

Bishop Berry commenced his lecture with his departure from New York told of his experiences with his room-mate and stated that his first glimpse of Ireland was at a point about where the great Cunarder went down last week. His description of his tramp outfit, tracing his relatives, visiting Blarney Castle, begging for meals, entering into the peasant homes, a take "Wake" etc. held the audience for an hour and thirty minutes.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE TO TYNDALL

The Coshocton Independents lost a hard luck game to the Tyndall team Saturday afternoon at Tyndall by the score of 2 to 1. The game was exciting from start to finish with the Independents playing like leaguers although pitted against the Tyndall first team which was made up of semi-professionals. Fretague, who hurled for the Independents, allowed the Tyndall team but three hits and four bases on balls. He struck out ten men. He gave a pass at a bad moment and an error followed by two hits sewed up the game.

The team will play Plainfield next Saturday. All teams wishing games are requested to communicate with George Smith, manager, 448 Chestnut street, Coshocton.

AT PASTIME.

"Threads of Destiny," is the Lubin masterpiece featuring Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, which will be shown at the Pastime theatre, this evening. The picture tells a wonderfully sweet and pathetic story of life among the Jews in Russia and the treatment of Siberian exiles. Not only is Evelyn Nesbit Thaw featured but also her little son, Russell William Thaw, who has already proved himself a remarkable child actor.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Genuine Heroism.

The characteristic of genuine heroism is its persistency All men have wandering impulses, fits and starts of generosity. But when you have resolved to be great abide by yourself, and do not weakly try to reconcile yourself to the world. The heroic cannot be the common, nor the common the heroic. If you would serve your brother, because it is fit for you to serve him, do not take back your words when you find that prudent people do not commend you. Be true to your own act, and congratulate yourself if you have done something strange and extravagant, and broken the monotony of a decorous age. It was a high counsel that I once heard given to a young person: "Always do what you are afraid to do."—Emerson.

HER ROMANCE IS A REAL TRAGEDY

Wooed and Won on Shipboard, Husband Is Murdered in Mexico.

FORETOLD HIS DOOM

American Shot Dead With Own Revolver by Enraged Employee—Sisters, Alleging Loan, Sue to Recover From Estate.

New York.—Another tragedy of Mexican life is revealed in a suit in the supreme court.

The immediate action concerns only the efforts of a sister to recover $20,000 from the $1,500,000 estate of her brother, who was murdered in Mexico. Behind it all appear the details of a shipboard courtship, the marriage, the hazardous life in the turbulent country and the last scene, the violent death of the husband after he had accumulated a fortune at the cost of much hardship.

In the fall of 1907 Albert H Lawrence, whose name at birth was Leszynsky, started for Mexico to took after "El Portrero" sugar plantation, in the state of Vera Cruz. On the same steamship was Miss Virginia Pernet, a young southern society woman, whose father, accompanying her, was a large sugar-cane grower in Mexico

Betrothed on Voyage.

Lawrence and Miss Pernet were engaged to be married before the vessel arrived at Vera Cruz. Even the details of the nuptials had been arranged in the brief courtship. Owing to parental opposition, however Miss Pernet was not married to Lawrence until late in 1908.

The turmoil of the revolution-stricken country did not appeal to the gentle tastes of the southern woman, and Lawrence himself became unhappy on his wife's account

When Lawrence came to New York in 1912 to attend to some business affairs he had a premonition or impending peril which he confided to his secretary, Mrs Mott "This will be the last time you will ever see me," said Lawrence. "I have a premonition that I will never again come to New York. Someone is going to kill me."

And Lawrence, so convinced that he had properly read his own horoscope, began making preparations for his impending fate He gathered together all his private papers and placed them in a safe deposit vault. He bought an automatic revolver and started back to Mexico and his death.

Killed Lawrence With His Own Weapon.

Slain With Own Revolver.

One day not long after he arrived back on his plantation Lawrence was seated at his desk. His revolver lay on his desk beside him. Charles Baillet, an employee, suffering from some imaginary wrong, his mind affected by the constant fear and dread in which the people lived in the disturbed country, came into the office

Lawrence's will left his entire estate to his wife. Despite the many obstacles he had been highly successful, and it was believed that his estate was valued at more than $3,000,000. But the value dwindled to $1,500,000. Hannah and Ray Leszynsky, sisters of the dead planter, brought a suit in Mexico to break his will but lost

Hannah Leszynsky died, and Ray has continued the suit in New York to the extent of demanding $20,000 from her brother's estate She alleges that her mother Mrs Amelia Leszynsky loaned her brother, known as Lawrence, $20,000, and that before the death of the mother she assigned this claim to her two daughters.

ATE ONLY RAW EGGS; NOW FEELING FINE

He took one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and was swiftly restored—with one dose. Seven months later he sent an order for more, saying:

"Since taking you remedy I have not been bothered any to speak of with my stomach. Before I had bad headaches and dizzy, weak spells, of which I am almost free. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking the one dose. It is not that I need the medicine now that I am sending. I am simply going to take it as a preventive. My wife induced a lady friend to try it. She had been eating only a raw egg or cracker or two, and often could not keep them down. This lady used your remedy and it has almost cured her."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

FISH FARMING NEW INDUSTRY

Method of Livelihood That Is Beginning to Attract a Good Deal of Attention.

A new method of livelihood, as well as a new method of living, is afforded by fish farming, which is a rapidly growing industry. It may be a lazy man's job, but for development beyond an addition to the family living, of course, it takes time and attention A running stream or an acre of pond can be made to earn more money than a well-tilled five-acre farm, says the People's Magazine The national government, as well as many states through their fish commissions, not only gives free instructions in fish farming, but will also supply the young fish or eggs most likely to thrive best in the locality But best of all perhaps is the recognition that farmers all over the country are coming to, that a private fish pond is a splendid source of food supply It was no long time ago when such a thing had not been thought of Now generally there is a comprehension that such a private pond costs little to maintain, and is almost sure to furnish far more fish than any one family can eat. The demand for fish adapted to this kind of pond culture is greater than the supply, and farmers enterprising enough to have ponds have no difficulty in selling the product. Many farmers sell eggs as well as fish to other farmers and to the governments of state and nation Private fishing clubs are a great aid in the same way. Fish can be shipped anywhere if they are kept cool and moist, and this makes it easy to find a market almost boundless in extent But fish, of course, are subject to diseases that at times cause large losses, and the official fish service is at work constantly finding out these diseases and their remedies. Most of these diseases, it is said, come through impure water caused by contaminated streams. If the water is kept pure, the fish farmer has little cause for worry as to his "crop."

SUPERIOR TO NATURAL ICE

Many Reasons Why the Artificial Product Has Advantages—Is More Sanitary.

Artificial ice made from distilled water, in a cleanly way, is free from disease germs; the same cannot be said of natural ice produced from waters of varying degrees of purity. There has been a too-common impression that water purifies itself in freezing, and even that ice made from polluted sources is sterile, and therefore safe. It is true that freezing eliminates many of the impurities. As the temperature falls in the quiet winter nights and the sheet of crystal forms, the impurities, the organic matter, the mineral salts, the bacteria are thrust downward. But the elimination is not complete.

For two reasons ice made from polluted water is itself likely to be polluted. First, certain quantities of the foreign substances in the water, small, it is true, but none the less objectionable, are frozen into the ice. Second, ice is usually formed by alternate freezes and thaws through the early winter, followed by continued cold weather that finally closes the lake or river. The ice that is cut often includes, therefore, a certain amount of snow-ice or surface ice that has had no opportunity to eliminate its impurities, and retains everything that contaminated the water of which it was made.—The Companion.

Robin That Reasoned.

"A robin's nest was filled with young ones in sight of a friend's window. The mother bird was away when a violent thunderstorm came up. As the heavy drops began to pour down she returned and the little ones greeted her with open mouth, expecting food She pressed them down with her foot and sat on them with extended wing to shed the hard rain, and remained there till the storm was over.

"Was there not a process of reason here? She saw the heavy downpour of rain and, thinking of her exposed children, believed they would be hurt or drowned without her care, so she hurried back. This is called instinct, but instinct is concentrated wisdom without the process being shown."

MOST POPULAR BURGLAR KILLED

"Sorry to Disturb Folks," He Said, "But I Never Harm Anyone."

ONE VICTIM MOURNS

Makes Mistake of Making Second Call at Home in Same Night and Is Killed in Skirmish With Police.

Kansas City, Mo.—That polite burglar, the late Charles E Smith, sought to bring to his craft a degree of gentility and consideration that would gain and retain the good will and esteem of his clientele. But Burglar Charles overestimated his standing in the home of James B. Welsh, 1734 Jefferson street, when he sought to make a return call at that home the same night that he had tried and failed to rob the vault at the Girls' hotel near by.

Seven bullets narrowly missed the fleeing Charles. As it was, the burglar escaped, only to be killed in a skirmish with two policemen after robbing a house at 3210 Washington street.

Details of Smith's two calls at the Welsh residence were revealed when police headquarters received a visit from Mr. Welsh, a real estate man He was accompanied by Mrs. Welsh.

Discusses Ethics With Woman.

The voice from the vicinity of the lantern explained that the visitor was "just a burglar making an honest living."

Mrs. Welsh, who is corresponding secretary of the Y W. C. A., was much interested in the young man's attitude. She asked him if he thought it right to go into other people's houses? Didn't he know that he would be imprisoned, if not killed?

"I just take the chance," said Burglar Charles. "Life is a gamble. Everywhere you hear that. I'm just a chap out of work Of course I am sorry to disturb folks."

Mrs. Welsh sat up in bed. The burglar took a chair. A long conversation under these unusual circumstances followed. During the conversation Mrs. Welsh told the burglar that she trusted he would not go into the room occupied by her mother, a woman of eighty-five, who might be badly frightened.

Mrs. Welsh Was Awakened by the Flash of a Dark Lantern.

"I won't," he agreed.

But the burglar, perhaps by accident, found his way into that very room. Mrs. Welsh's mother sprang from bed.

"Are you a burglar?" the woman demanded.

"I am," the burglar replied. "And you are the lady's mother—and I just promised not to disturb you. I am sorry. You are not afraid?"

"Just so you don't do anything mean."

Sought Friendly Shelter.

The robbery over, Burglar Charles gracefully and quietly withdrew before the woman could give an alarm.

When the robbery of the Girls' hotel failed the polite burglar needed a friendly shelter Very well, he would make another professional call to the Welsh home.

In through the same window went the burglar. Up the same stairs. With the confidence of being among friends, he got into Mr. Welsh's room.

A startled exclamation! A revolver shot! Mr. Welsh had fired.

As the burglar leaped through the front door Mr. Welsh took a second shot at the too trustful visitor.

Mrs. Welsh told the police that she could not be sorry that Smith had been killed.

Mrs. Welsh was shown a photograph of the man who had become known to the police as "the best liked burglar in Kansas City." She recognized him.

Postal Saving Accounts May be Opened by Mail

Beginning July 1, postal savings accounts may be opened by mail. Under the old ruling and system, a depositor must be a patron of the office in which his deposit was made. This was inconvenient for many and, as many were served by offices which were not designated as Postal Savings Banks, they were unable to avail themselves of the feature. The new order will make it possible for every person over ten years of age to open an account.

In this connection, the local post office officials made the following statement to the Tribune:

"The local post office is the principal Postal Savings office in the county having a large number of depositors, with new accounts being added daily. The Postal Savings System is becoming more popular here, as there are absolutely no losses on any deposit.

Deposits can be made at the Money-Order Window between the hours of 7:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m.

Questions pertaining to any part of savings system will be gladly answered. We respectfully solicit patrons to call and investigate a savings system in which they can have the utmost confidence."

Armcos Win By Getting Breaks

Largest Crowd of Season Witnesses Free Hitting Contest--Sondles Poles Home Run In The First--Feds Show Form Throughout Game.

In an interesting and free-hitting game on the Red Sea diamond Sunday afternoon, the Zanesville Armcos, by getting a few lucky breaks, won from the Coshocton Federals for the second time this season by the score of 4 to 2. The largest crowd of the season was on hand for the game which might have been won by the locals had they secured decent breaks at critical moments. A total of fifteen clean hits were made during the game and many time slong flies, which looked good for two bases, were pulled down by the out-fielders.

Sondles Stars.

The batting of Sondles who secured a home run and a two bagger out of three trips to the plate, was one of the big features of the game. Both of Coshocton's runs were made by virtue of the right fielder's work. While Clark and Branfield were unable to hit the ball, their work in the field was all that could be desired the latter accepting five chances without an error. McGiffin was also in good form playing without an error and making two hits one of which brought in Sondles for the second score. Unger showed up well accepting his chances without error and finding the Zanesville pitcher for two safeties. Powelson was slightly off-color and through and over-throw on his part, lost a chance for a double in the third. However, neither of his errors were costly and much regret was expressed among fans when he was derricked in the fourth.

Leavengood Appears.

Leavengood replaced Powelson at short and demonstrated to the fans that he is not only one of the best pitcher in this section but also a classy infielder. Hook was weak at the bat striking out three times and making an error which allowed one run to come in in the seventh. Gillen and Darr in the points were working exceptionally good, going the entire nine inning with a falter.

Scores In First.

Torbert led off for the visitors with a grounder which took a mean bound making it impossible for Powelson to catch. Barnes sacrificed him to second; Senter flied to Clark; Holland went to first when he stepped in front of one of Gillen's twisters and two scores came in on Dowell's single. E. Smith struck out.

Clark grounded to short in Coshocton's half of the first and Sondles poled the first ball pitched clear over the ditch in deep right field reaching home before the ball was found.

Sondles Hits Again.

In the last of the sixth Sondles' two bagger followed by Branfield's sacrifice and McGiffin's single, tied the score. The Armcos came back in the seventh when Torbert singled taking second on Barnes' sacrifice and scoring when Hook bungled a fly which he should not have attempted to take. The Armcos again scored in the ninth.

Caught Stealing.

In Coshocton's half of the ninth it looked like the score might be tied. Mohler batted for Branfield and was struck out. McGiffin followed with a two bagger and Unger flied out to right. When Leavengood had two strike's and two balls on him, McGiffin attempted to pilfer third and was caught.

DYSPEPSIA OVERCOME

Tone Up the Stomach with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

When you have dyspepsia your life is miserable. You have a bad taste in your mouth, a tenderness at the pit of your stomach, a feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heatrburn, and sometimes nausea.

Dyspepsia is difficult digestion—that is what the word means—and the only way to get rid of it is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system. Hood's Sarsaparilla, sold by all druggists, is the one medicine which acts on the stomach through the blood and also directly. Its beneficial effects are felt at once. Improvement begins immediately.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, makes the rich red blood that is needed for perfect digestion, and builds up the whole system. No other medicine can take its place.

HUMOR OF COURTS OF LAW

Cross-Examination Methods Seem to the Layman to Border Somewhat on the Ludicrous

Did you ever sit and listen to a lawyer as he cross-questioned a witness of the opposition? It takes a wonderful and active mind to handle this part of the trial. It runs something like this: "How long did the defendant stay in the house?" "About fifteen minutes." "Did you have a watch?" "No, sir." "You didn't have any watch?" "No, sir." "How did you know it was fifteen minutes?" "I didn't know." "You didn't know?" "No, sir." "You didn't say you knew?" "No, sir." "What did you say then?" "You asked me how long he stayed in the house I gave it as my opinion that he was there about fifteen minutes." "Oh, you gave it as your opinion that he was in the house about fifteen minutes?" "Yes, sir." "As a matter of fact he might have been in there more than fifteen minutes?" "He might have, yes." "He might have?" "Yes, sir." "It might not have been fifteen minutes for all you know, isn't that a fact?" "Yes, sir, it is." "If someone should come in to this court and swear that the defendant was in this house thirteen minutes, you wouldn't be able successfully to dispute the statement?" "No sir." "What did he go into the house for?" "To make some arrangements about his brother-in-law's funeral." "To make some arrangements about his brother-in-law's funeral?" "Yes, sir." "Was his brother-in-law dead?" Before the witness can answer, the court intervenes: "Court will now adjourn until 1:30. The jurors should be careful not to discuss this case, or any of the important testimony to which they have been listening, with outside parties."—Lamar Democrat.

CARE IN FASHIONING BUGLE

From start to finish, the making of an army bugle is a process of much ingenuity and interest. A bugle may not at first sight present a striking resemblance to its cousin, the coachhorn, but the one is practically a curled-up version of the other, for, before the bugle is bent into shape, it consists of a narrow tube, 51 inches long.

In the first stage of manufacture the bugle is cut out of sheet copper and rolled into two thin cylinders, technically known as the "bell" and the "branch." The narrow tube, which is the "bell," is gradually shaped out on molds until the opening is the regular 4-inch diameter. It is then "spun" on a wonderful machine, and an expert workman takes the rough edges off the copper.

Both sections are afterwards filled with molten lead, preparatory to the bending stage, and it is this solid stuffing which prevents the tube breaking in the process, and allows it to keep its shape. The expert workman, with the aid of a formidable lever and hammer, bends the bugle into the familiar shape, the lead being subsequently melted out at a charcoal furnace, after which the instrument is sent off to the polishers.

One of the most intricate parts of the bugle is the mouthpiece, which is made of nickel silver and turned out on a special lathe. With the mouthpiece fixed, the instrument is ready for the testing-room.

LIKE A MOURNING DRAPERY

Interested Colored Spectators Brought Facetious Remark From Member of Their Race.

The darky has a sense of humor peculiarly his own, and he by no means objects to a joke with reference to his color—provided he makes it himself, according to a story that was told by Champ Clark.

"There is a darky in Missouri who has acquired considerable renown in his locality for his taste in landscape gardening. He was employed in setting out shrubs on the lawn of his employer. The owner of the place was nowhere to be seen, but a number of the gardener's friends were leaning comfortably on the fence at the foot of the lawn, watching the operations with absorbed interest. Another darky, who was driver for a physician living near, looked curiously at this row of spectators, and thus addressed the doctor, who was getting into his buggy:

"'Doctah' (very solemnly), 'dere's somebody dead at Mistah Jones, shore.'

"'Dead?' said the doctor. 'No such thing, Tom I should have heard of it if there had been any illness in the family.'

"'Well, doctah,' said Tom, pointing to a row of sable individuals who were hanging on the picket fence, 'ef dere ain't nobody dead at Mistah Jones, den what fo is all dis heah mournin' strung along de fence?"

Getting the Record.

A lot of people seem to put in a lot of time thinking about whether their lives are successful or failures Usually they try to measure them by the life and success of someone else, and the result isn't often satisfactory They're bound to come to the conclusion that there are some records they can't equal If they are beating some other records the suspicion creeps in that it isn't much credit, anyhow. Of course the real trouble is that anybody who's really making good always has something better to do than cast up the accounts of his own achievements There's only one record to compare yourself by, and that will never result in self-satisfaction on the one hand or discouragement on the other; for it's your own record.—Milwaukee Journal.

Boxer Admits She Made Him "Take Count," So Seeks Divorce.

New York.—Johnny Dundee light weight prize fighter, who has handily sent to the count many an antagonist of the ring, says he is no match for his wife, who, according to charges he has filed, has made it unsafe for him to longer live with her.

Dundee put his alleged grievances in affidavit form and attached the affidavit to his complaint in a suit for separation filed in the supreme court. The action is recorded as being brought by Joseph Carroro, Dundee's real name, against Lucille Corroro.

He says he was married on June 26, 1912, and one child was born. This is Lucille, now two years old. Almost from the day of the wedding, Dundee alleges, his wife made trouble for him. Often he forgave her on her promise to mend her habit of beating him when things went wrong.

"She committed acts of violence against the plaintiff," the affidavit runs, "striking him over the head with china dishes, shoes and bric-a-brac, and more particularly almost daily during the month of February last and daily from then to March 10 she did strike and beat the plaintiff over his head with dishes while he was asleep."

It was on March 10 that, Dundee says, he decided he could stand it no longer and would bring suit.

PITTSBURG'S DANGEROUS MAYOR

Mayor Armstrong of Pittsburg wants the system continued which deprives labor of employment, forces the poor to herd into crowded, unsanitary tenements, spreads disease, causes a high rate of infant morality and produces much of the misery, vice and crime from which all crowded cities suffer. He makes this clear in his demand that the Pennsylvania legislature accomodate the landed interests, that profit from these conditions, by taking away from Pittsburgh the little power it possesses to interfere effectively with their predatory opportunities.

He wants this power taken from Pittsburg because "it is a decided step toward the singletax theory of Henry George." That means it is a decided step toward higher wages, lower cost of living, better opportunities to live decently and healthfully, a better chance for the laborer to be independent and a cutting off of opportunities to get wealth without earning it. Mayor Armstrong considers such conditions "unlawful, unjust, unfair and un-American." That makes very clear what his ideas must be of law, justice, fairness and Americanism.

Mayor Armstrong states quiet specifically that he holds the increasing of opportunities for labor to be objectionable, for he urges against the policy of untaxing improvements: "the main purpose of the act is to compel property owners to either sell or improve." Because valuable land in Pittsburg is not properly improved men are walking the streets of the city looking in vain for work. The competition of these jobless ones is keeping wages down and Mayor Armstrong objects to a measure whose main purpose, he says in substance is to relieve this situation.

The Mayor is one of those who, when a presidential or congressional campaign is on, shouts loudly for "protection to American labor." But his action as Mayor shows sentiments very different from those implied in his words as a politician. Because so much of Pittsburg's land is withheld from use, rents are so high that the city's laboring population must live in crowded slum districts under conditions most unfavorable to health by compelling the owners of unused or partially used lots "to either sell or improve." Yet Mayor Armstrong fights against this proposition. Pittsburgh labor needs protection against nothing so much as against the Mayor of the city.

Should Mayor Armstrong succeed in his efforts and secure withdrawal of what little power Pittsburgh now has, the citizens should bear in mind what he has done. The unemployed should remember him as they go about in their hopeless search. The men at work, cowed by fear of being forced into the unemployed ranks, should remember what the Mayor of their city has done to prevent their emancipation.

And parents of babies, that will die this summer of suffocation in crowded tenements, should remember Mayor Armstrong's efforts to perpetuate such conditions. Of course there will be others besides Mayor Armstrong to blame. But he has taken the lead in fighting against the interest of the wealth producers of his big city and therefore deserves special mention.—Samuel Danziger In The Public.

Up to this time the warring nations are giving out statements of the number of their dead and wounded. If it keeps up much longer the one fact of real interest will be how many soldiers have they left who are able to bear arms?

This old world of ours will apparently never run without friction. An English paper states that the suffragists in London and the Ulster people in Ireland are only waiting for the war to end to open up on parliament again.

An exchange says it never takes any stock in figures which deal with the profit or loss of the farmer, because too much depends on who does the figuring. Doesn't something also depend on who does the farming?

We got out our 1914 model straw hat the other day, gave it the once over, replaced it on the closet shelf and have been wondering ever since how the blamed thing could change so much over winter.

When the fashions change again and women begin to wear long, voluminous skirts, the world will gradually forget that there are as many bow-legged women as there are.

The Tribune has always been opposed to a literacy test for foreign immigrants, but believes it would be a good thing to apply to some of our American writers of fiction.

The Wise Guy says: in some instances it is ambition that drives men to success; in others it is their wives.

THE MOURNFUL MUSE

By Walt Mason

The lost Lenore, who's gone before, and all her dismal breed, have lived in loads of weepy odes which made our bosoms bleed. Of bards a crowd have sung the shroud, the grave, the bier, the hearse; They've chanted death with every breath, and made their art a curse. Oh, Lord of hosts! We need no ghosts, or skulls, or dead men's bones; why fill this vale with hopeless wail? It has enough of groans. A Byron's woes, a dirge of Poe's, ne'er cheered an aching heart, ne'er helped a soul from out the hole, or made a fear depart. They call it Art to rend your heart with agony boiled down, but I declare I'd rather wear the jester's motley gown, than end my game in Hall of Fame among the highbow guys, who'd rather croak than spring a joke or brighten weary eyes. I hate that Art so far apart from human toil and pain, it sings Greek gods and other frauds, or fools with Charles's Wain. I hate that bard who labors hard to make the morgue seem near, who would impart (and call it Art) the graveyard atmosphere. The mighty lay that's grim and gray is but an empty din; the song of gold, I'll always hold, is that which brings a grin.

PEOPLES' FORUM

NATIONALISM AND WAR

Editor The Tribune:

The cry of the American press and the ruling class of America of the last week has been that the U. S. must protect her citizenship. Imbecibily has been rampant. As we gaze at Christian civilization we wonder if it has any sense, if it stops and questions its motives; and we wonder if the jungle is not superior to it.

No one who is familiar with the history of political government will ever honestly claim that nations are organized to protect the lives of their subjects and no one who understands the underlying causes of nationality will ever honestly maintain that it is possible for political organizations to espouse the cause of human liberty and human life. As the ruling class estimates value human life is the cheapest thing they deal with.

Our governments are spending millions of dollars to protect the lives of domestic animals and but mighty little to protect the lives of people. The evidence is accumulating that the ruling class of this country consider property of more value than human lives. I only need to refer you to Ludlow of recent infamy; of the starving miners of eastern Ohio; of the toiling children in mills and factories of the south and east; of police brutality toward the workers; and of the millions of children suffering for lack of proper nourishment.

In our legislature halls, in our courts of jurisprudence, in our executive chairs, whose voice is heard the loudest? Is it the voice of the millions of workers—their wives and children asking for laws that will insure them life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness or the men who represent property? A fool can answer that.

This hue and cry about the nation's duty to pjrotect its citizenship was raised because a British passenger ship carrying along with its human freight contraband of war, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. This incident and a few other minor ones are seemingly the cause of it all.

But underneath it all and bearing up all this aroused patriotism is a commercial class, dominant in the politics of the nation. They and their lackeys and retainers, are wise enough to see that the growing conflict of commercial interests between the capitalists of this country and the capitalists of Germany will eventually lead to war or surrender of some of our markets. And so they lend their influence to stir this matter up. Before this natoin is in a position to wage war the army and navy must be greatly increased and this severance of diplomatic relations of this country with Germany will put the people in the frame of mind to permit the expansion of militarianism in the United States.

As I see it this is the excuse of the commercial interests in favor of the president's policy, or perhaps of influencing it. Besides there are the interests that will gain directly from an increase of armament—the manufacturers of guns, warships and all munitions of war.

But there are other reasons greater even than these.

President Wilson has impressed the people with his desire for peace. There is scarcely any one who doubts his sincerity in the advocacy of peace. He will not thoughtlessly or unadvisedly lead this nation to war. If he can consistently prevent the rupture he will do so.

Can he consistently do so?

I do not believe he can. If they will cut out their piffle and their prattle about nothings, the defenders of nationalism will admit that nationalism is an outgrowth of the private ownership of property. That it takes its character from the industries of a country and that it has its limitations in the protection of property. That it protects human life in the pursuit of business but the protection of life is but an incident in nationalism.

Let us see. In all Germany has killed a few more than one hundred American citizens and the killing of these was but an incident in her warfare. She was not striking at American citizens when these lives were lost. Do we imagine that war with Germany will not cost the lives of any Americans? Are the American people willing to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of lives of her citizens and strike terror to the hearts of her women and children all in the name of protecting the lives of her subjects?

From the standpoint of humanity nothing could be more imbecile. The ruling class of this country are not entirely unaware of what war means but they are victims of their narrowness of thought. The ruling class of this country are defenders of nationalism, their thinking is necessarily limited to the limits of nationalism.

I think I have shown that nationalism is limited in its protection of human life. Then the people who defend it are limited to that extent in believing the nation should go to protect human life.

President Wilson and his cabinet are so limited. Besides they are limited again.

The makers of wars are not the ones who die by war. Among those who cry the loudest for intervention but mighty few will ever march in the ranks. The fighters of the world's wars are not in the eyes of the ruling class the people. They are but cannon fodder.

President Wilson, and so are we all, a victim of his narrowness of view of life, of his narrowness of view of the functions of government, and a victim of a medieval method of thinking that is fatal to peace. Germany is a victim likewise. She is in a death struggle with powers that would destroy her. These powers would make her little children cry for bread; would see them wither and die for the want of food that they might crush her.

When she sent her submarines to British waters to torpedo merchant and passenger ships carrying food and munitions of war, she was doing the only consistent thing she could do. To wage war with an umpire is not to wage war. When the world gets wise enough and human enough to make war a parlor game then war will only be a memory. The inevitable consequence of war is the destruction of human lives and to talk about the protection of a citizenship by war is to talk foolish. War may be necessary and inevitable but the necessity and inevitableness are not in the protection of human life. The great cost of war is not the financial and property cost. War brutalizes humanity, atrophies and dries up human sympathy, paralyzes the soul of man, causes despair to settle upon the human race, and produces grief and heartache which nothing but the drying up of the human emotion can allay.

Such a cost is not to be counted up. In aeons of time humanity will be paying this debt of the war now raging in Europe. The best human sentiments will be stunted for generations yet to come because of this war. Do the people of the United States desire to increase this? We have been boasting for the last few months and thanking the Lord we were citizens of a peaceable nation. Was this but a figure of speech to entrap the unwary? Shall we make our boast good and pay the price for peace which is infinitely less than the price for war?

It is the patriotism of nationalism that shall prevail or the patriotism of humanity? If the patriotism of humanity prevails then we must reconstruct our ideals, dynamite our thinking, and cease to be polly wiggles and be men and women.

Modern Business.

Oh, business, what sins are committed in thy name! Thou art like charity, for thy magic formula doth "cover a multitude of sins." Many are the men who fall down and worship thee (and none other)! Not only time and talent, but heart's blood are sacrificed on thine impious altar. Thy shrines are cold with dead loves, reeking with forfeited joys. Mercy and pity are vanished far from the portals of thy temples. Sweet charity falls dead, stricken by the glare of thy polished brass. Thou slayest deals and murderest sympathy and lost crowd the spirit of service out of the road of life. Thou killest with surfeit and mad passion of contest, thou dost suffocate the timid and weak with want and fear of age, hunger and infirmity. Thou art a blasphemous, arrogant, heartless idol and tyrant of man.—Rev. G. I. Browne.

Teeth That Won't Stop Growing.

One of the most extraordinary cases known to dental science is that of a Virginia man whose teeth won't stop growing. About five months ago he discovered that his teeth were becoming longer and more prominent. He consulted a dentist, who advised him to have them trimmed. He did so, and soon after they began to grow faster than at first. He had them sawed off again, but they continued to grow. The best doctors were called in, but none can tell the cause of this strange affliction. At this time his teeth are almost an inch long and are turning backward in his mouth, so that eating is difficult; hence there are fears that the disease may result fatally.

Peculiar Incubators.

China is probably the only country where an incubator and a bed are employed in combination, but in the Shantung district this sight is common. Chickens are for the most part hatched by a native process of incubation, consisting in placing eggs in earthenware jars, which are set upon kongs or beds built of brick and clay and within which slow fires, generally of coke or charcoal, are kept burning. The eggs are carefully turned from time to time. The kongs used are generally those which serve the family for beds, each family throughout the country districts rearing a number of chickens in this way.

MACHINERY BAD FOR NERVES

Bound to Wear Away Vitality In Those Constantly at Work Amid a Perpetual Whir.

A great many men and women who work in busy factories, where there is a perpetual whir of machinery, are facing as great hardships as any work can bring. Consciously or unconsciously, the noise is wearing away their vitality just as a grindstone wears away the steel of the blade that is being sharpened.

There is a certain regular rhythm in all the simpler kinds of work. This is seen in the fact that most of them have developed songs of their own. Sailors have their "chanties," soldiers march to the beat of the drum; spinning, weaving and farming labors have inspired songs and dances. Man is in tune with nature, too, and while the storm may produce awe it does not fatigue the brain.

The rhythm of machinery, however, is altogether too fast for human rhythm, and the body never actually becomes accustomed to it. No matter what may be a man's natural pace, he must follow the speed of a nonhuman power, which, like a tireless demon, drives him night and day. And, all the while, the whir of the machinery around him grates upon the brain unceasingly.

Sometimes we think we have got used to it.

Not so. We may have become dulled, but that is a sign that something is lost, some sensitive feeling gone. It is a sign of wearing out.

It is the myriad voices of the overbusy modern world's machines that are doing more than anything else to wreck our nerves.

STARS BRIGHTER THAN SUN

Estimation of Astronomers Is That There Are Many Several Times More Luminous.

Astronomers estimate that in a sphere with a radius of 20,000,000 times the distance from the earth to the sun there are nearly 7,000 stars which are from ten to one hundred times as luminous as the sun.

In the same sphere are no less than 23,200 stars which are each as luminous as the sun, and the enormous number of 93,300 stars which have one-tenth the brightness of the orb which lights our earth by day.

For convenience in studying them astronomers have divided the stars into six main classes, known as B, A, F, G, K and M stars. These classes are named in the order of their temperature, the B stars being the bluest and hottest, and the M the reddest and coolest.

The stars in class G are the most like the sun, their spectra being full of metallic lines, and with broad lines due to calcium.

All the red stars are divided into two subdivisions known as giant and dwarf stars. The former are thought to be stars which are in an early stage of evolution and increasing in temperature, while the latter are growing older and darker. Taken altogether the red stars average 100 times as bright as the sun, and this is the reason why we can see them although at great distances away.

SAYS IT'S AN ULTIMATUM.

French Paper's Comment On Wilson's Note to Germany.

Paris, May 17 - The Figaro says of the American note to Germany:

"A careful reading of the note quickly shows that it is, properly speaking, an ultimatum addressed to Germany The dilemma which is an essential constituent of an ultimatum is plainly posed: viz., either renounce your proceedings immediately or we will take the necessary measures to compel you to do so. No other interpretation can be given to the last paragraph and Berlin will not misunderstand

"If doubt exists, the countermanding of the plan for the departure of the fleet for San Francisco will dissipate it.

"Some have mistaken the tone of the note and have imagined a certain hesitation is still existing in the minds of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan Such persons, regarding the outward appearances only, have failed to grasp all the biting irony in the praises, incidentally almost all retrospective, addressed to Germany's loyalty and good faith.

"But a fairly close inspection suffices clear that each paragraph and phrase and even each word is a flagrant condemnation of Germany's conduct. Mark Twain might have written the passage about the warning given the Lusitania's passengers. President Wilson's scornful humor can be fully relished in this passage. If Germany declines to submit it to arbitration it will be at her own risk."

Hugues Letoux, now in the United States, says in a cablegram to the Matin: "President Wilson's Philadelphia speech provoked an avalanche of criticism Americans are, perhaps, pacifists, as happens in all countries where women control moral opinion. The American does not wish peace at any price."

REVOLUTIONARY GHOSTS

Threaten Destruction of Johnson Homestead, Stratford, Conn.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 17.—Revolutionary ghosts in the Johnson homestead in Stratford, near here, threaten destruction of the edifice built by Dr. Samuel Johnson, first head of King's college, New York city, and later occupied by his son, William S. Johnson, member of the first United States congress. The house was occupied by Susan E Johnson Hudson, who died two years ago It has recently been untenable owing to the weird sounds within the structure, and W. J. Johns, one of the heirs to the property, is said to have ordered its demolition.

If A Powell confirmed the weird noises recalling that twenty-five years ago, when he and his mother occupied the house for a summer, the butler and maids were driven out He experienced many unaccountable happenings, such as heavy doors opening, hearing invisible cannon balls rolling down stairs, the swish of unseen skirts and clicking of military shoes

RUMOR NOT CONFIRMED.

German Raider Karlsruhe Reported Outside Newport News, Va

Newport News, Va., May 17.—Residents of Newport News, Norfolk and Old, Point Comfort were excited by reports that the German cruiser Karlsruhe was coming into port to join the interned auxiliary cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Fredrich.

The reports were spread by a pilot, who stated when he came ashore that the Karlsruhe was waiting just beyond the capes for a pilot to bring her in. At the quarantine office at Old Point, however, it was stated that no information had been received showing that the Karlsruhe, which has several times been reported sunk, is in that vicinity. Coast tugs that came in after the report spread that the Karlsruhe was bound for this port, brought no confirmation of the rumors.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

Makes Patriotic Address In Connection With Naval Review.

New York, May 17.—Voicing his and his nation's pride in the navy and its readiness to face and cope with responsibility, President Wilson delivered a patriotic address at the civic banquet in his honor in connection with the review of the Atlantic fleet.

"The interesting and inspiring thing about America is that she asks nothing for herself except what she has a right to ask for humanity," said the president. "We want no nation's prosperity We question no nation's honor. We stand for that for which every nation should wish to stand for.

"When I think of the flag, the only touch of color about the fleet, it seems to me I see alternate stripes of parchment, on which are written right and justice, strips of blood, spilt for maintaining these rights, and in the corner a strip of blue serene. The mission of America is the only thing a soldier or sailor should think about. He has nothing to do with her policy. He stands and waits to do the things which the nation desires.

"America sometimes seems to forget her program, or rather those who represent her do, but the people never forget. Their real affection and force is for the ideals than men embody.

"When a crisis comes in this country, it is as if you put your hands on the pulse of a dynamo. That spirit now broods over the river. No threat is lifted against any man or any nation This is just evidence that the force of America is lifted for great moral principles. There is nothing else for which she will contend."

WILSON VIEWS ATLANTIC FLEET

Screeching Whistles and Cheering Crowds Welcome President.

New York, May 17.—America's armada, the Atlantic fleet, greeted its commander in chief, President Wilson, here, for the first time, and the president swept aside the cares of state for the day.

Rain, chill and drizzling, with leaden skies, tossed a soggy pall over the opening festivities attending the president's first review of the United States' sea fighters.

The president and his party are quartered on the presidential yacht Mayflower. Screeching whistles and cheering crowds welcomed the president to New York as he steeped ashore and was whisked away in an automobile to the reviewing stand opposite the public library, where he witnessed the land parade of the bluejackets

Throughout the parade the president stood, silk-hatted, intent on the spectacle, serious of face, except when the passing of the mascots from the various battleships drew ripples of laughter from the crowd.

Elaborate precautions were taken for the president's safety. The entire force of available detectives, 70 in all, were assigned to work solely in protection of the president. They were scattered through the crowds at the wharves and parade route Secret Service Chief Flynn and Police Inspector Faurot had charge of the small army acting as the president's body guard.

After the parade the official luncheon to the president and his party took place at the Hotel Biltmore where the president made his only speech. As soon as this luncheon was over the president boarded the Mayflower. Two torpedo destroyers convoyed the Mayflower, which was followed by the Dolphin, with Secretary Daniels aboard, and the Isis, with the secretary of commerce aboard, all flanked by three destroyers on each side.

The Mayflower steamed up the Hudson at a speed of ten knots, passing west of the line of sixteen battleships. As soon as the bow of the Mayflower came abeam of the stern of the Wyoming, Admiral Fletcher's flagship of the fleet and the first warship the president passed, the first saluting gun was fired by the Wyoming.

At 7 30 tonight President Wilson went aboard the Wyoming, where he dined with Admiral Fletcher and staff Later the president witnessed the boat races and water carnival from the Wyoming.

Cruisers Not Represented.

The fleet which President Wilson reviewed for the first time in his official capacity, comprised virtually the entire strength of the Atlantic naval forces and is the backbone of a navy, which at the outbreak of the European war stood second only to Great Britain's and Germany's. The cruiser division alone was not represented. Of the sixteen battleships, the superdreadnoughts New York and Texas, with their great fourteen inch guns, are rated the most powerful.

The other units of the battle squadron in the order in which they were built are the Wyoming (fleet flagship) Utah, Florida, Delaware, North Dakota, Michigan, South Carolina, Kansas, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Virginia, Rhode Island, Nebraska and Georgia. Sixteen destroyers, twelve submarines, three monitors, mine laying, repair, hospital, refrigerator and other auxiliary vessels compose the rest of the fleet

The president and his party spent the night on the Mayflower, and tomorrow morning will review the fleet at the Statute of Liberty as it passes out to sea.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF.

New Jersey Man Also Shoots Parents of His Spouse.

Jacobstown, N. J., May 17.—Edward Applegate, twenty-four, of Wheat Sheaf, Pa., killed his wife, twenty-two, probably fatally wounded his father-in-law, Edwin De Bou, wounded his mother-in-law and then ended his own life on the De Bou farm.

The young couple had been married three years. A few days ago they quarreled and Mrs. Applegate returned to her parents' home.

Applegate visited her there and when she refused to return home with him, killed her with one shot from a revolver. He then turned the weapon on De Bou, one bullet striking him in the head and another in the neck Mrs. De Bou was the next victim, but her wound is not considered dangerous. After attempting to shoot his sister-in-law, Applegate killed himself.

BOSTON WOOL

Boston, May 17.—The moderate increase in the demand for wool from consumers has led to slight expansion in the volume of business, but buyers are cautious and generally resist the extreme prices quoted by dealers and importers. There is a good deal of foreign wool for sale and some importers are ready to accept smaller profits than others in order to close out. The feeling is, however, firm and no material concessions are made. There is some business being concluded every day in the new clip, but in all sections of the West buyers and sellers are still apart and large deals are held up.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Common garden Sage and Sulphur makes streaked, faded, or gray hair dark and glossy at once.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.
